SOFTWARE USED

2020-2021

Library automation is an important and essential component of any modern library. Library automation is the process wherein a) a computerized database of books is created b) a computerized database of library patrons is created and c) circulation transactions are automated, with the help of integrated library automation software.

During 2020-2021, the central library of M V Muthiah Govt. Arts College for Women, Dindigul has initiated the process of creating a database of library books. The process was outsourced. Three former students of our college (Dept. of Computer Science) were selected. The responsibility of entering required data about 8000 books in the MS Excel program was given to each of them. The job work is completed. Now, we have a database of 24,000 books in MS Excel format, out of about 27,000 books we have in the central library. Thus, we have almost completed the first step of our library automation process.

2021-2022

- Library automation is partially completed.
- A computerized database of books is created.
- A computerized database of library patrons is created.
- About 2900 books are bar-coded.
- Barcodes are printed in the ID Cards of all the students.

2022-2023

- About 4000 books are barcoded.
- KOHA, an open source integrated library automation software, was installed for automating the library in the month of August, 2022.
- Koha-based In/Out Management Module is also installed in August, 2022.

- The librarian was exporting the library data in phased manner in the software. The bibliographic details of all the books in the central library were exported into Koha software in batches.
- After the book database, the librarian collected the details of all the patrons (students, faculty members and non-teaching staff including guest lecturers and PTA Staff) and created patrons database in KOHA for them.
- In/Out Management Module / Automatic Gate Entry System was implemented from December 2022. Manual login is kept aside.
- Circulation transactions were automated from January 2023, on a trial basis.
